2. Competency Goals (CGs) according to AACSB

The overall competency goals and objectives of ESB degree programmes have evolved from the ESB Business School mission and are subject to continuous quality assurance processes.

'Within an educational environment that is truly international, we develop leaders who shape global business practice and society responsibly.'

Derived from this target, ESB Business School is committed to achieving distinct learning outcomes in individual programmes. The quality of teaching and learning is measured along these outcomes. The programme goals are rendered in English and follow the international quality standards of AACSB (Association to Advance Collegiate Schools of Business). On the basis of assessment results, curricular improvements may be deemed necessary and thus implemented to help improve learning and teaching within the degree programme and in line with the educational mission of ESB Business School.

The defined competency goals (and objectives) for all ESB programmes include:

- Language proficiency
- Intercultural competence
- Ethical behaviour
- Problem-solving competence
- Functional and methodological competence
- Digital skills in functional and/ or methodological context

	Professional competencies:
	<ul> <li>to introduce the students to many of the statistical and quantitative concepts and procedures in business applications and to improve their ability to make better decisions utilizing statistical methods on a wide variety of topics such as interpreting numerical and graphical summaries of data, solving a range of problems involving probability, understanding the basic concepts of statistical inference, computing and interpreting the results in hypothesis testing, fitting and interpreting regression models.</li> <li>to understand a common statistical presentation.</li> </ul>

	Methodological competencies:
	<ul> <li>to introduce the students to statistical methods, concepts and analysis to support decision making and to understand the role of Excel in statis- tical calculations.</li> </ul>
Course-specific contri- butions to AoL competency goals (CG 1-6)	CG1 is reinforced in this module by especially focusing on the spoken busi- ness statistic specific vocabulary due to the interactivity of the course. CG4: Especially statistical methods and techniques are introduced to de- velop a basis for solving research questions. Furthermore students need to show in the final exams that they can apply these methods appropriately. CG5: Assessment embedded. Students learn to describe, to present, to analyse and to interprete quantitative information. They are able to derive con- clusions, to obtain significant results and make recommendations in a busi- ness setting. CG6: is introduced by focusing on the possible business implications of handling data. Descriptive and inferential results are obtained using the statistical software SPSS or EXCEL.
Contents/ indicative syllabus	Descriptive statistics, probability and probability distributions, sampling and sampling distributions, statistical inference and hypothesis testing for single populations, statistical inference and hypothesis testing for two populations, simple regression analysis and correlation, tests of goodness of fit and independence.
Teaching and learning methodology	Lectures with worked examples to illustrate methods described accompa- nied by numerous practice problems. Performing statistical calculations using Excel and SPSS. Tutorials are offered to support students in problem-solving. Additional online material in Relax
Miscellaneous	The content of this module is universal and applicable around the world.

Name of lecturer	Anna Goeddeke
Language of instruc- tion	English
Credits (ECTS)	6 ECTS
Total workload	180 hours (60 hours lecture time, 120 hours independent study)
Contact hours per week (SWS)	4 hours
Examination/ type of assessment	Final Exam and Continuous Assessment 2 hour exam at the end of the semester (80%), assignments (15%) & partic- ipation in class (5%)
Weighting of grade within overall programme	6/157
Learning outcomes	<ul> <li>Upon completion of this course, participants will have developed the following competencies:</li> <li>Professional competencies: <ul> <li>familiarizing students with current internationally accepted microeconomic concepts and its problem-oriented application</li> <li>enabling students to comprehend and analyse market economy systems and to understand and assess the de facto opportunities and limits of market economy systems</li> <li>strengthening the ability to apply classical microeconomic theories as well as behavioural economic theories when appropriate</li> </ul> </li> </ul>

	Methodological competencies:
	<ul> <li>ability to think in a structured manner about complex problems</li> </ul>
	<ul> <li>deepening mathematical skills; ability to apply theoretic models to real- world problems, strengthening the ability to challenge theoretic con- cepts and their applicability to real life situation</li> </ul>
	<ul> <li>developing competencies to assimilate new knowledge alone or in a group with the support of text books</li> </ul>
	• be able to support firms' decisions on strategic variables in different real live competitive situations
	Social competencies:
	different intellectual skills needed in this class, such as mathematical, analytical, synthesising and problem-solving skills
	• students will have to work in teams and thereby benefitting from the dif- ferent skills of the different team members.
	<ul> <li>therefore, students' social competence cooperating with each other, managing conflicts and giving and receiving feedback will be strength- ened</li> </ul>
	Personal competencies:
	• the class will support the first semester students to find their personal learning style providing a variety of learning environments
	• participants will study under the guidance of the lecturer in class as well as studying in smaller groups or individually outside of the class. The continuous assessment will enhance their awareness about the cur- rently on-going process of learning and problem-solving.
	<ul> <li>students will learn to manage themselves to handle a considerable amount of unfamiliar knowledge within a limited timeframe. Thereby, the class supports a realistic and positive self-confidence of the stu- dents together with the student's ability in managing personal expecta- tions.</li> </ul>
	• students are furthermore encouraged in their ambitiousness to build the ability to solve applied economic problems.
Course-specific contributions to AoL competency goals (CG 1-6)	CG1 is introduced in this module especially focusing on the spoken and writ- ten microeconomic vocabulary. CG4 is also introduced in this module. Especially economic methods and techniques are applied to solve international business problems. CG5: is reinforced in theis module. In particular the calculation of prices, quantities, profits, consumer surplus, producer surplus, welfare, elasticities, taxes, welfare losses in different market forms is practiced in class
	CG6: in introduced in this class. Techological development have huge impact on competition in different markets. Theses are discussed in class.

Contents/	1. How do markets work?
indicative syllabus	<ul> <li>1.1 Classical theory: Analysis of supply and demand; principle of price formation; elasticity of supply and demand; theory of households and enterprises in the economy.</li> <li>1.2 Behavioural theory of consumer decision, introduction to cognitive biases</li> <li>2. Which types of markets do exist?</li> </ul>
	Introduction to different types of markets such as perfect competition, (nat- ural) monopolies, and oligopolies 3. Why do some markets fail?
	Introduction to the theories of market failure, such as exclusion and rivalry, too big to fail, and asymmetric information
Teaching and learning methodology	Throughout the term, classroom experiments and case studies will be used to deepen the understanding of microeconomics. Students will be asked to read introductory and less formal literature on microeconomic problems, problem sets with more formal exercises will distributed to the students that can be processed by students individually or in groups, and subse- quently discussed jointly in seminar groups.

16.2. Project Management

Course	M16.2
Name of lecturer; for contact details, see ESB website	Prof. Dr. Florian Kapmeier
Language of instruc- tion	English
Credits (ECTS)	3
Total workload	90 hours (30 hours lecture time, 60 hours independent study)
Contact hours per week (SWS)	2 hours
Learning outcomes	This course aims to introduce and train students in managing projects, and especially dealing with complexity in projects. Upon completion of this course, participants will have developed the follow- ing competencies:
	Professional competencies:
	• Students will learn about theory, methods, and quantitative tools that are applied to effectively plan, organize, and control projects, and about efficient techniques for managing projects.
	• Students will understand the theory underlying the methods and the tools of project management, incl. work breakdown structure (WBS), Critical Path Method (CPM), Critical Chain Method, Programme Evaluation and Review Techniques (PERT), and Project Risk Management, among others.
	Methodological competencies:
	• Students will develop mechanisms of problem-solving and apply them to project management business cases.
	• They will develop competencies to assimilate new knowledge alone or in a group with the support of state-of-the-art textbooks, apply the methods and tools to real-project management challenges and understand their limitations.
	Social competencies:
	• Students will improve their intellectual skills including soft, social, com- munication, mathematical, analytical, synthesising and problem-solving skills. As students work primarily in teams they benefit from their team members' skills: students will strengthen their social competence through cooperating with each other, by managing conflicts and giving and receiving feedback.
	Students will also obtain an appreciation for organizational and human aspects in project organizations and project manager soft skills and typical profiles.
	Personal competencies:

	<ul> <li>Students will gain personal confidence by building up knowledge, skills and capacities to approach managerial challenges in general and in managing projects in particular.</li> <li>They also learn how to present logical and convincing arguments.</li> </ul>
Course-specific contributions to AoL competency goals (CG 1-6)	CG1: The course is taught in English. By completion of the course, students will be able to understand and articulate the relevant building blocks of pro- ject management in English. CG2: Students collaborate in international teams to prepare and hold a presentation on a topic of managing projects. They work in other interna- tional teams on other issues on project management in class, thus reflect- ing on the different cultural dimensions. Furthermore, one topic is espe- cially focussing on project management in the international context. CG4: Students develop mechanisms of problem-solving to real-life project management cases. While they learn the building blocks of project manage- ment, students acquire the ability to apply general concepts to specific situ- ations. Also, students prepare real-life project management cases with ref- erence to the theoretical concepts learned. CG6: Students are introduced to how digital technology supports managing large complex and international projects.
Contents/ indicative syllabus	<ul> <li>Introduction to project management</li> <li>Projects in the organizational structure</li> <li>Challenges in managing international projects</li> <li>Project activity and risk planning</li> <li>Project budgeting: costs and risks</li> <li>Project scheduling: network techniques</li> <li>Resource allocation</li> <li>Project monitoring, project control, project auditing</li> <li>Project termination</li> </ul>
Teaching and learning methodology	Seminar-style course, discussion of cases, computer-based project simula- tion and methods for project planning, team tasks and presentation to the plenum, team assessments.
Miscellaneous	Guest lecture

Course-specific contributions to AoL competency goals (CG 1-6)	CG1: The thesis has to be written in English, especially focusing on a scien- tific language and thus reinforces this learning goal. CG2: Throughout the process of finding a research topic as well as while conducting the research, each student can demonstrate an awareness and understanding of cultural issues in a business context. This is dependent on the topic. CG3: The understanding of ethical principles and social responsibility per- spectives is discussed within the thesis, if applicable. CG4: Assessment embedded, the basic idea of the thesis is to impel the students to select and apply appropriate research methods to solve busi- ness problems on their own. This will be supported by detailed feedback from the supervisor. Ideally, the thesis is done together with a company working on a real-world project. The adviser supports this project. The thesis is also subject to 'assurance of learning' processes.
Contents/ indicative syllabus	Students will familiarize themselves with a complex topic, as well as to cate- gorize, limit, critically evaluate and further develop it. They will work inde- pendently and apply academic and scientific working methods. While writ- ing the thesis, they will present a complex topic in written form, and actively contribute to discussions about scientific topics in the field of International Business.
Teaching and learning methodology	Close supervision of the students' work by the supervisors: Prior to the offi- cial filing student and supervisor agree on topic, research questions, table of content, and project timetable. The thesis might be conducted in cooper- ation with an external organisation. In the course of the project, student and advisor will discuss progress on a continuous basis. Every student must have at least 1 mandatory consulta- tion with the supervisor during the period. This consultation will in particular include feedback on the selection of the methodology and its technically correct application.
	Formal deadlines are set to hand in the final version of the table of content as well as a draft version.

Indicative reading list	<ul> <li>For the start basic literature covering business research methodology, e.g.</li> <li>Cooper, D. &amp; Schindler, P. (2014). Business Research Methods (12th ed.). NY, USA: McGraw-Hill Irwin</li> </ul>

	- written assignment (20%), verbal assignment (20%;
	- active participation and attendance (10%).
	All continuous assessments are determined at the group/language level.
Weighting of grade within programme	3/157
Learning outcomes	For Spanish, courses are offered on several levels (A1 to C1 of the Common European Framework of Reference for Languages). For French, courses are offered at the A2/B1 to C1 level. For Chinese, courses are offered A1 to B1 level. Over the course of three semesters students complete three consecutive levels of one language. Students must demonstrate prerequisite skills in order to advance to the next level. After successful completion of this course, students should have developed:
	Professional competencies:
	<ul> <li>Students will improve their language skills, while increasing their knowledge of basic business terminology in the target lan- guage.</li> <li>Students will demonstrate best practices for business</li> </ul> communication skills in the target language.
	• On all levels, students will improve their communication skills according to their individual capabilities.
	<ul> <li>Students will acquire or improve their grammar skills and vocabulary in the target language according to their individual competency level.</li> </ul>
	• Students will acquire or improve written and oral communication skills in the target language, especially those skills used in business contexts and situations in the student's personal context (studies, internships).
	Methodological competencies:
	Students will analyze and discuss different business topics using the tar- get language.
	Social competencies:
	<ul> <li>Students will interact in the target language for various purposes and with different types of audiences.</li> </ul>
	Students will improve their intercultural awareness and intercultural communication competencies.
	Personal competencies:
	<ul> <li>Students will improve self-confidence using the target language for different purposes, including business situations.</li> </ul>
	• Students will become familiar with Spain/Latin America, France and Ger- many and the ways of life and business life in Spanish, French or German- speaking countries.

	<ul> <li>Students will become aware of current economic developments and problems in Spanish, French, Chinese or German-speaking countries.</li> </ul>
Course-specific contributions to AoL competency goals (CG 1-6)	CG1: In levels A1-B1 students learn the language in context by discussing current events in the target language. For example, A2 German: students write a simple letter to the local refugee office to offer tutoring. The difficulty level matches their competency level. CG2: Students discuss the topics and reflect on different cultural perspectives visually (e.g. Venn Diagrams) with level-appropriate vocabulary. Students collaborate in international teams.
Contents/ indicative syllabus	Depends on the course level. See Miscellaneous.
Teaching and learning methodology	All teaching is by native speakers and based on short presentations, interactive activities, role-plays, written assignments, discussions, articles and short conversations.
Miscellaneous	The Business Spanish, Business Chinese and Business French courses are offered ESB-wide and therefore reflect the ESB-wide module and course de- scriptions. The Business Communication and Business German courses are offered within the study programme.

Additional adjustment: In order to encourage students' engagement and participation during class times, there is an additional component to the IFR grade: The final grade can deviate from the group presentation's and group pa- per's grades for individuals who continuously participate and actively con- tribute to the lectures. Individual group members, who show outstanding performance during class time, will receive an up to 0.5 higher grade for the course. Vice versa, poor- performing students may be downgraded by up to 0.5.
Weighting of grade within programme	5/157
Learning outcomes	Upon completion of this course, participants will have developed the follow- ing competencies: Professional competencies:

97. 97. 97.

Version: 13.07.2022 Status: Published Date: 13.07.2022

	In this seminar, students get a detailed understanding of financial account- ing according to International Financial Reporting Standards (IFRS) and the growing field of Sustainabiliy Reporting. In specific, <ul> <li>students will develop an understanding of the origin of the international accounting standards, the principles and the framework of IFRS in con- trast to major local reporting principles like US GAAP or German GAAP (HGB).</li> </ul>
	<ul> <li>since IFRSs are continuously developed, students will become familiar with the role of the standard-setting bodies (especially the IASB) and the imminent changes of IFRS.</li> </ul>
	<ul> <li>students will deal with the recent standard developments by the IASB and the latest developments in international reporting. Based on this, students will be equipped with the knowledge and skills to critically dis- cuss and solve specific accounting problems and challenge existing and proposed standards.</li> </ul>
	• Students will get insights into the growing field of sustainability reporting and how frameworks such as ESG, GRI or Integrated Reporting guide new forms of corporate reporting.
	The course contributes to the profile in Finance.
	Methodological competencies:
	<ul> <li>Through a principles-based approach, students will develop critical thinking and the ability to apply general accounting concepts to specific situations and to critically discuss existing solutions to accounting prob- lems.</li> </ul>
	• A major part of the course requirements is the writing of a research paper. Here, students will train the key skills of selecting, justifying and applying a methodology for solving a research question.
	• Students will train their academic writing skills, which will prepare them for writing their bachelor thesis.
	Students will further shape their presentation skills.
	Social competencies:
	• Through the interactive nature of the course, students will refine their oral and written communication skills.
	• Through teamwork under time pressure and diversity in class, students will develop social and intercultural skills.
	Personal competencies:
	• Students develop the skills to work autonomously on a new complex topic.
	They learn how to act competently and self-responsibly.
	• As part of the profile in Finance, the course will train students for both a specialist career in either of the following fields: corporate finance, accounting, auditing, or banking, as well as a leadership role in international management.
Course-specific contributions to AoL competency goals (CG 1-6)	CG1: The course is taught in English. By completion of the course, students will be able to understand and articulate the most relevant terms used in practice and academia in the field of international financial reporting in English. CG3: The course makes references to ethical aspects, in particular, cases of accounting fraud (such as the Enron accounting scandal) and accounting for sustainability. Students engage in discussions about unethical behavior that can lead to accounting misstatements and will understand how unethi- cal behavior in accounting can lead to flawed investor decision making. In addition, students will discuss the growing field of accounting for sustaina- bility and triple bottom line reporting. CG4: Students will develop mechanisms of problem-solving to real-life busi- ness cases in international accounting. As the course takes a principles- based accounting approach, students will acquire the ability to solve ac- counting problems independently by applying the accounting conventions and principles defined in the IFRS Conceptual Framework, such as rele- vance and faithful representation. In an academic research paper, students learn to justify the selection of appropriate methods and are trained in ap- plying the chosen methods correctly. Students will be coached by the in- structor and will receive individual feedback on their research paper after submission of the paper.

	CG5: Students are required to perform mathematical calculations and pre- pare and interpret financial reports, which essentially consist of quantitative information.
	CG6: Students are introduced to the changes in the accounting environ- ment through the increasing availability and capabilities of digital systems that support corporate reporting.
Contents/ indicative syllabus	<ol> <li>Theory, Framework, and Regulation</li> <li>The process of harmonization, IFRS vs. US GAAP</li> <li>Financial statements presentation</li> </ol>
	4. Fixed (non-current) tangible assets
	5. Intangible assets, Goodwill, and Impairments
	6. Accounting for leases
	7. Sustainability accounting (Triple Bottom Line, Global Reporting Initiative GRI)
	8. Integrated Reporting ( <ir>)</ir>
	Further exemplary topics to be covered in the course are:
	9. Provisions, contingent liabilities, and contingent assets
	10. Financial instruments, financial derivatives
Teaching and learning methodology	The general topics and an overview will be presented by the instructor. Case studies will deepen understanding. Students will work in parallel (in groups) on current issues in corporate reporting and prepare a presentation and a research paper according to scientific standards. The student work is coached by the instructor. Students will present the results of their work

Learning outcomes	The course provides a focus on mathematical, computational and applied issues on advanced topics in banking and finance. Upon completion of this course, participants will have developed the following competencies:
	<ul> <li>Professional competencies:</li> <li>After the successful completion of this module the students can critically discuss the relevance and limitations of financial &amp; computational concepts; apply mathematical models; understand model implications in specific situations; calculate and analytically derive model outcomes; Students will implement their models in reliable and useable software solutions with software applications.</li> <li>This module contributes to the profile in Finance, Economics, Data Science.</li> <li>Methodological competencies:</li> <li>Students will have the persistence, integrity, and maturity to develop advanced tools that can be used responsibly and fully appropriate to the problem at hand; improve the ability to work in an analytical rigorous way. Stu-</li> </ul>

	dents will design and evaluate complex dynamical systems in a global con- text; synthesize complex quantitative information for professional presenta- tions; transfer and apply theoretical knowledge to real-life settings. Social competencies: n/a Personal competencies: n/a Students will effectively communicate difficult quantitative solutions to non- specialist users; the students should be able to think strategically
Course-specific contributions to AoL competency goals (CG 1-6)	CG1: Class discussions about current financial issues as well as all course documents are in English. CG4: Continuous problem-solving in the lectures, programming tasks, home- work and exam. Students will have the persistence, integrity, and maturity to develop and apply advanced quantitative tools that can be used responsibly to solve problems.

Module	M24 - M30
Semester	6 or 7
Duration of module	1 semester
Type of module	Elective
How frequently is the module offered?	Each semester
Admission require- ments	None
Level	Major
Transferability of the module	Open to exchange students / students of other ESB bachelor programmes on request.
Module coordinator/ responsible professor	Prof. Dr. Martin Mocker Office: 5-111, Tel.: 07121 271 3123 martin.mocker@reutlingen-university.de
Name of lecturer For contact details, see ESB website.	Prof. Dr. Martin Mocker
Language of instruc- tion	English
Credits (ECTS)	5
Total workload	150 hours (60 hours lecture time, 90 hours independent study)
Contact hours per week (SWS)	4 hours
Examination/ type of assessment	Presentation of project teamwork; individual in-class contribution to case discussion
Weighting of grade within overall programme	5/157
Learning outcomes	Upon completion of this course, participants will have developed the follow- ing competencies:
	Professional competencies:
	• Students are expected to understand the ambiguity and complexity of defining and executing strategy in an increasingly global and increasingly digital world.
	• They will be able to identify the key decisions—especially those pertain- ing to digitalization—driving long-term firm performance and understand how these decisions influence why some firms are more successful than others while still others fail.
	This module contributes to the profile in Strategy, Leadership, or Digital Business.
	Methodological competencies:

347. 347. 347.

Version: 13.07.2022 Status: Published Date: 13.07.2022

	<ul> <li>the capability to deal with complex, ambiguous situations by breaking problems down into parts, analyze the parts critically, weigh opposing arguments, present a synthesis and debate a decision in class as well as staying open to enhance or change decisions</li> <li>Social competencies:         <ul> <li>use feedback to improve their communication skills, their ability to work in teams, as well as defend their arguments in a discussion</li> </ul> </li> </ul>
	Personal competencies
	<ul> <li>deal with ambiguous situations that do not have a definite "right or wrong" answer</li> </ul>
Course-specific contributions to AoL competency goals (CG 1-6)	CG1: reinforced through using English as the course language. CG3: reinforced as it pertains to the ethical questions that come up in rela- tion to strategic decisions such as exerting bargaining power over other stakeholders for competitive advantage. CG4: assessed as the evaluated deliverables require analyzing strategic business challenges faced by actual companies and formulating how these can be solved with strategic management tools and frameworks. CG6: is assessed as the students analyze and discuss real-life cases on the impact of digital technologies.
Content/	The course is organized around strategic decisions
indicative syllabus	1. Overview: Strategic issues in the digital age
	2. The impact of digital technologies on industry structure
	3. Strategy implementation and business architecture
	4. The role of digital technologies in gaining and sustaining competitive advantage
	5. Multi-sided platforms
	6. Digital transformation
Teaching and learning methodology	Discussion of cases (i.e. the narrative of a business manager facing a diffi- cult problem that will be discussed in class); lectures; students also work in groups and are assigned projects.
Miscellaneous	This module contributes to the profile in Strategy, Leadership, or Digital Business.
Indicative reading list	References and access to supplemental readings, videos, cases are pro- vided during lectures; optional text book:

Learning outcomes	Why do so many business strategies fail? Why do we see so few high sus- tainability impact actions that transform markets and organizations towards environmental and social sustainability, despite evidence of successful ef- forts? Why do so many actions fail to produce lasting results? Why do many businesses suffer from periodic crises, fluctuating sales, earnings, and mo- rale? Why do some firms grow while others stagnate? How do once-domi- nant firms lose their competitive edge? How could companies avoid being accused of "greenwashing"? How can firms assess high-leverage policies against the climate crisis? And how can a firm identify and design high-lev- erage policies, policies that are not thwarted by unanticipated side effects? Accelerating economic, technological, social, and environmental change challenge managers to learn at increasing rates (the "great acceleration"). And we must increasingly learn how to design and manage complex sys- tems with multiple feedback effects, long time delays, and nonlinear re- sponses to our decisions. Yet learning in such environments is difficult, pre- cisely because we never confront many of the consequences of our most important decisions. Effective learning in such environments requires methods to develop systems thinking, to represent and assess such dynamic complexity - and tools managers can use to accelerate learning throughout an organization. Upon completion of this strategy course, participants will have developed the following competencies: Professional competencies: Students are introduced to systems thinking and the system dynamics modeling methodology. They apply system dynamics to corporate challenges in the area of strategy, corporate environmental sustainability, organizational change, and policy design. • Students will learn to visualize a business organization in terms of the structures and policies that create dynamics and regulate performance. In particular, they will improve their understanding of the ways in which an organization's performance is related to its internal structure and operating policies as well as those of customers, competitors, and suppliers. . Students will build their own simulation models, use interactive management flight simulators, and work with case studies to develop conceptual and modeling skills for the design and management of organizations in a dynamic world. • They will learn principles for effective use of modeling in the real world. (no prior programming skills necessary) The module contributes to the profile in Strategy. Methodological competencies: Students will develop an understanding of dynamic complexity, inherent in most business situations of policy-design and decision-making. They will learn how to carefully analyze complex systems, understand over-time-behavior, and the impacts of time delays, non linear relationships, and feedbacks. Students will learn to recognize and deal with situations where policy interventions are likely to be delayed, diluted, or defeated by unanticipated reactions and side effects. • Students get to work with role-playing games, simulation models, case studies, and management flight simulators to develop principles of policy design for successful management of complex strategies. • They will have a chance to use state of the art software for computer simulation and gaming (no prior computer modeling experience is needed). Social competencies: Students will improve their ability to work in teams in order to analyze complex business challenges. They will also refine their oral and written communication skills because of the interactive nature of the course.

Curriculum and Syllabi Handbook BSc International Business

	<ul> <li>Through teamwork under time pressure and diversity in class, students will develop social and intercultural skills, including giving and receiving feedback.</li> <li>Personal competencies:</li> <li>Students will improve their analytical and problem-solving skills. Students will be better aware of dynamic complexity.</li> <li>They will learn about their own position and the impact of own behavior, policy-design, and strategic decision-making on the complex system in which they themselves – as decision-makers - are embedded.</li> </ul>
Course-specific contributions to AoL competency goals (CG 1-6)	CG1: The course is taught in English. By completion of the course, students will be able to understand and articulate the basic idea of system dynamics and its fields of application in English. In particular, students will be able to critically analyze issues that companies and societies need to deal with and find solutions. CG3: Ethical aspects do play an important role in this course, be it in understanding the dynamics of epidemics and vaccinations, the dynamics of companies' too fast growth, which is often followed by a bust, the critical aspect of (too much) consumption in the affluent countries of the world and the reflection on what really makes humans happy. A special focus of the class is the realizing of the differences in wealth of the different countries of the world when we play the simulation-based roleplay World Climate. Here, international students represent different nations and blocks of the world, and they need to find an internationally valid agreement on how to reduce GHG emissions in order to stabilize the temperature rise below 2°C over pre-industrial times. Students realize very well the tension between the developed and the developing countries of the world. CG4: In this course, students realize that many management tools cut off feedback loops that the world actually consists of. Students learn a different way of thinking of how to approach complex issues that the world is dealing with, including feedback-loops, time delays, and non-linearities – all of which combined enable students to realize the roots of counterintuitive behavior of problem situations.

Language of instruc- tion	English
Credits (ECTS)	5
Total workload	150 hours (60 hours lecture time, 90 hours independent study)
Contact hours per week (SWS)	4 hours
Examination/ type of assessment	The grade is based on a team paper (individual contributions) on the re- search project participants conduct throughout the semester
Weighting of grade within overall programme	5/157

Learning outcomes	Upon successful completion, students will have developed the following competencies: Professional competencies:
	• in-depth knowledge in a defined subject area of HRM, acquaintance with relevant theoretical backgrounds, in-depth familiarity with challenges, issues, concepts, and solutions as well as limitations in the subject area.
	Methodological competencies:
	<ul> <li>competence to conduct empirical research projects independently, abil- ity to investigate HRM concepts from different angles, critically assess their relevance and use, chances and risks, possibilities and limitations, prerequisites and consequences, putting them in context, building an own critical stance, and drawing profit for daily work out of them.</li> <li>Social competencies:</li> </ul>
	<ul> <li>perform effectively as a team member, encourage and utilize others' contributions, build teams.</li> <li>Personal competencies:</li> </ul>
	<ul> <li>increase personal and work effectiveness, exercise self-reflection, improve self-awareness and self-management, become aware of diversity in people and concepts, reflect on practice to improve work skills continuously.</li> </ul>
Course-specific contributions to AoL competency goals (CG 1-6)	CG1: Reading assignments & discussions (in-class) of textbook chapters (Business Research Methods) and scientific papers (diverse topics) grows self-assurance in communicating "technically" in English. Students design and conduct an empirical study throughout the semester and write a paper for examination (all in English). CG2: Students work together in multicultural/multinational teams on their research project and paper. Many projects' topics entail intercultural com- parison as a content aspect. CG4: Recommendations respectively transfer to practice is a standard topic of every paper discussion. Implications for practice must be included and are evaluated in each term paper. CG5: In their research projects, students use SPSS/AMOS, or NVivo/MAXQDA to analyze quantitative or qualitative data they have col- lected. All papers discussed entail statistical or content analyses of empiri- cal data, new forms of digital data analyses like topic modelling or text anal- ysis are introduced.
Content/	The seminar is conducted in the form of a project seminar.
indicative syllabus	It is built on a "three columns" didactical model: (1) Learn, (2) Reflect, (3) Apply.
	Participants learn (read, recapitulate and discuss) the basic principles of business research (1).
	They reflect (read, recapitulate and discuss) recent research in the area of HRM. Doing so, they deepen their understanding of applied business (HRM) research and become familiar with various up-to-date HRM topics and research results (2).
	Finally, participants apply their knowledge and conduct own research pro- jects in teams during the semester. Doing so, they, in addition, develop ex- pertise in the content area of their research (3).

	Upon conducting their research projects, participants are closely coached by the instructor. Each project includes an empirical study as well as the preparation of a respective paper/project report. Topics for the projects are defined by practice partners, the instructor, or participants themselves. Condition is that the topic is appropriate for a structured quantitative or qualitative empirical research approach. Participants will stepwise develop their research proposal, configure an ap- propriate research design, review the literature, decide about and develop research methods, determine the sample, administer data collection, ana- lyze data, draw conclusions, discuss findings and write up their entire re- search. The research process will basically follow the structure given by Quinlan et al. (2015). Participants prepare respective chapters for class meetings in which they are recapitulated and discussed. In accordance with that struc- ture, all steps of the research process will be - one after the other - applied to the determined research question/topic. Simultaneously, current research papers are discussed in class in order to better understand the application of business research principles and strat- egies, as well as to become familiar with the HRM content issues under re- search.
Teaching and learning methodology	The course is conducted in the form of a project seminar

L. Managing a Global Workforce

Module	M24 - M30
Semester	6 or 7
Duration of module	1 semester
Type of module	Elective
How frequently is the module offered?	Each semester
Admission require- ments	None
Level	Major
Transferability of the module	open to exchange students / students of other ESB bachelor programmes on request.
Module coordinator/ responsible professor	Prof. Dr. Julia Hormuth
Name(s) of lecturer(s) For contact details, see ESB website.	Prof. Dr. Julia Hormuth
Language of instruc- tion	English
Credits (ECTS)	5
Total workload	150 hours (60 hours lecture time, 90 hours independent study)
Contact hours per week (SWS)	4 hours
Examination/ type of assessment	The grade is based on an experiential group project (PA, 100%). Students have to develop a paper and presentation.
Weighting of grade within overall programme	5/157
Learning outcomes	Upon completion of this course, participants will have developed the follow- ing competencies:
	Professional competencies:
	<ul> <li>Familiarity with specific challenges of managing people in a multinational environment; understanding of country-specific differences of HRM; deeper insight into one aspect of managing a global workforce.</li> <li>The module contributes to the profiles in Leadership or Strategy.</li> </ul>
	Methodological competencies:
	• Understand and apply methods to design work, recruit and select employ- ees, develop remuneration and compensation systems, manage em- ployee and organizational performance, cultivate employee learning, and to manage talent in an international organization.

	Understand and apply methods to diagnose international organizations from a human resource and organizational behavior perspective and to design organizational development interventions to resolve typical inter- national business challenges.
	Social competencies:
	<ul> <li>Presentation and teamworking skills (through group work and group presentations).</li> </ul>
	Personal competencies:
	<ul> <li>Awareness of the own skills in managing international employees; aware- ness of the own skills in realizing an academic project.</li> </ul>
Course-specific contributions to AoL competency goals (CG 1-6)	CG1: Students develop an academic paper and hold a presentation; a strong focus is on academic writing and presentation skills. CG2: Students work in international teams. They analyze the influence of cultural differences on HRM policies and practices in different countries as well as the intercultural dimension of international HRM tasks (e.g. management of culture shock, cross-cultural adaptation, cultural due diligence). CG4: Students work on a research project on an international HRM topic. They develop a paper following academic standards (literature review, methodology, empirical results, discussion of impact).
