Our bachelor's programmes conform to three structurally different models: Y, X and H.

X for our double degrees

X symbolises the programme model in two countries. In our International Management Double Degree (IMX) programme, you study two years in Germany and two in a country of your choice. You have a choice of partner universities in eleven countries. ESB offers this unique opportunity within the International Partnership of Business Schools (IPBS). With currently more than 2,000 students, IPBS has been the largest integrated university cooperation programme in Europe for almost 40 years. Some partners also offer postgraduate cooperation programmes leading to master's degrees or doctorates.

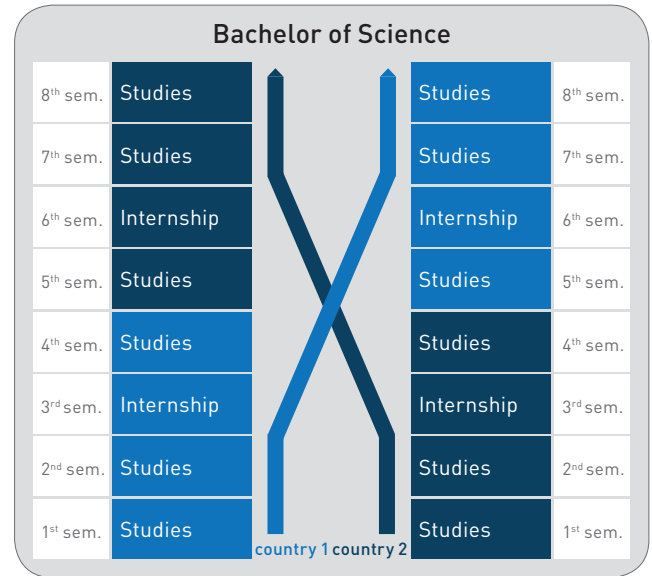

You can begin your studies either in Reutlingen or at one of our partner universities (depending on the link). The contents of the programmes are coordinated to avoid overlapping. Studies are in the language of the host country. An internship semester in each country also allows you to gain extensive practical experience. At the end of the eight-semester programme, during which you will have spent two full years abroad, you will be awarded the Bachelor of Science in International Management degree by Reutlingen University, and the corresponding degree of the partner university which you attended. This profile will put you in the spotlight for leading companies with international operations of all sizes and in all branches of industry.

Programme structure (2+2 years)

As a future graduate in business administration you will prepare yourself over four years of intensive study in small groups for your international career. For all students, in addition to the language of the country of their selected international partner university, English is obligatory. On successful completion of the programme, students will have earned 240 ECTS credits. You will therefore have fulfilled the formal entry requirement for all post-graduate courses leading to a master's degree, as well as for many PhD programmes.
